GROUP EFFORT: Members of the underwater clean-up team.

Hooked on clean-up

WHILE people combed creeks and mangroves on Clean Up Australia Day, one intrepid group went underwater to rid Amity Point on North Stradbroke Island of discarded fishing line and other debris.

A team of eight divers from Reef Check Australia and Dive Evolution collected 56kg of fouled fishing line with hooks, sinkers and other tackle, and 11kg of glass bottles.

The aim of the clean up was to raise awareness of its effects on the marine ecosystem.
